ABSTRACT

This study seeks to answer the main question: What is the perceived impact of the Confirmation classes on the selected United Methodist Church (UMC) members in Manila Episcopal Area? This study looked into how the Confirmation classes affected the affective, behavioral, and cognitive experiences of the selected respondents.

The guide questions used in this study were based on the UMC vows as well as the objectives of the Confirmation classes cited in the Book of Discipline of the United Methodist Church. The study was anchored on Robert R. Pazmiño’s framework, “Integration of Developmental Concepts with Biblical Anthropology.” This research particularly focused on one of the six elements in the framework which is the “Learning,” and under it were the three learning domains, namely, affective, behavioral, and cognitive which according to Krathwool, Bloom, and Masia, are expected to develop as a result of the instructional process.

The methodology used in the study is the multiple-case study approach. Semi-structured interviews facilitated how data was gathered. The six respondents are active members of the UMC and are currently between the ages of 23 to 40 years old. They were chosen using the purposive sampling method. Data were analyzed using a multiple-case comparison.

Based on the findings of the research conducted, Confirmation classes can provide opportunities for holistic growth among the participants if delivered in ways that cater to the needs of the students. The following are some of the conclusions that this study yielded: based on the findings of the study, in terms of the affective aspect, the Confirmation classes that the respondents had were too doctrinal and too academic especially for 12 year-old learners. The respondents indicated that there were elements in Confirmation like the culminating activity, the re-affirmation of faith, and the Love Feast that were memorable instances that helped them think about their commitment to Christ. In terms of the behavioral aspect, Confirmation lessons helped the respondents see the big picture of their commitment to God. The presence of other activities like summer camps, Christmas Institute, Bible studies, and other church activities helped them as they processed their faith. Finally, in terms of the cognitive domain, Confirmation led the learners to an understanding of their Christian faith through learning and reflecting the Four Pillars of Faith and its relevance to their lives. Confirmation also allowed them to re-affirm their faith and prepared them to become professing members of the UMC.

After conducting this research, the researcher realized that further studies on the following areas need to be considered: (a) A survey on what activities in the youth camp can provide most impact on the youth’s learning experiences especially if the Confirmation could be conducted in a camp; (b) A qualitative study on the impact of Confirmation vis-à-vis spiritual nurturing of the youth; (c) A qualitative and quantitative study about the Christian education programs that most help the youth in nurturing their Christian faith; (d) A project thesis on creating an interactive curriculum on the lessons of Confirmation; and (e) A case study on best practices on how to teach Confirmation lessons to children 12 years old.

DEDICATION

This thesis is dedicated to the United Methodist Church, to all Christian Educators in all denominations, pastors, deaconesses, teachers, and curriculum writers.

This thesis is also dedicated to my dearest family, boyfriend, and friends who supported me by all means in terms of prayers, encouragement, and financial assistance.
ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

My thesis journey is a faith-walk journey. God taught me a lot through this season and it is worth keeping and sharing. It is one of my best experiences. I know that I cannot make it without the help of all people who God sent to support me, guide me, teach me, and help me. They were God’s messengers and were really a blessing to me. I thank God above all, the author of life. His name be praised!

I thank God for sending all the people who helped me in this journey of faith. First, I thank my family especially my parents who supported me with my studies. Second, I thank Deaconess Loida Lindo who guided me from the very beginning of this research. I thank her for her vigorous help. She never got tired of teaching me.

I thank God so much for the life of my thesis adviser, Dr. Nativity Petallar, who did not give up on me. She was selfless in giving her thoughts, advice, and time despite her busy schedules. I thank God for her long patience and unconditional love for me. I also thank God for Dr. Clark Armstrong who did not stop giving me his support and encouragement. Thank you so much!

I thank God for my panel: Dr, Dick Eugenio, Dr. Carol Bestre, Dr. Clark Armstrong, Dr. Floyd Cunningham, and my external reader, Dr. Julie Bustamante. I thank them for their patience, guidance, and support. Thank you so much!

I thank God for Ma’am Connie Armstrong who diligently proofread the thesis for me. Thank you very much for your hard work!

I thank God for all our librarians, Ate Ruth, Ate Dorys, and Ma’am Noreen for helping me find the right books and references to read. Thank you po!
I thank God for all my friends who supported me in my journey and who prayed for me. Thank you teacher Maricel Magsino, Joy del Monte, Roxanne Dela Pena, ate Helen and kuya Lenmark Santos, and all my APNTS friends, especially to ate Emma Esmalla, Jojo Tan, and Cristina Berita. I also thank God for all my six respondents. This study will not be possible without their commitments.

I thank God for Taytay United Methodist Church, Taytay United Methodist Christian School Inc., and for Villa Lolita United Methodist Church who supported me financially in my studies by giving me part-time jobs. I thank God also for Union Church of Manila and UMC Global, and tita Merle Defensor, for sponsoring my graduate studies.

I thank God for my boyfriend, Khristian Ross Pimental who supported me and who is my inspiration in pursuing my dreams. I thank him for being a shoulder to lean and to cry on, and being my first cheerleader. Thank you very much!

Finally, I thank God who called me in this ministry. I thank Him for granting me wisdom and patience. I thank Him for being there, especially in those times that I was about to give up. I thank Him for providing me the strength I needed. And I thank God for His unconditional love and grace. Indeed, God is sovereign! His name be praised!
