Guest Editorial

October 15 has been designated by the General Stewardship Committee as LAYMEN'S SUNDAY in the Church of the Nazarene. It will be a day when the services rendered by our laymen will be gratefully acknowledged. In many of our churches laymen will give personal testimonies as to their stewardship. In some churches, laymen will bring the message in one or both services.

It is true that ministers are called of God for special religious service. God also calls laymen to accomplish tasks in His kingdom. All then, ministers and laymen, are servants of God. Only the assignments are different.

As servants, we are stewards—stewards of all we possess. The responsibility of a steward is often referred to as "stewardship."

The word stewardship is a translation of the Greek oikotiomia, from which is derived our English word economy. One Greek-English lexicon defines this word as "the management of a household."

In Old Testament times, every king had a steward who administered his household, his property, and his finance. The steward was often a slave who, because of his integrity and ability, had been elevated in position until he was next to the king or master. Abraham's steward was the trusted Eliezer. Joseph, you will remember, was a steward to Potiphar and later had a steward of his own. The New Testament abounds with accounts in which stewards play an important part.

These "stewardship stories" emphatically avow that privilege carries with it responsibility and that responsibility, in turn, implies accountability. A good steward, then, is a person who is honest, responsible, trustworthy, and dependable. These qualities certainly characterize Nazarene laymen.

Most Nazarenes are familiar with the fact that the General Assembly is the governing body of the church. Delegates to the General Assembly from the districts are evenly divided between ministerial and lay representation. Since the General Assembly meets only once every four years, it elects the General Board to take care of business matters in the interim. The General Board meets in regular session each January and in special session upon call. During the year, votes are taken by mail as the need arises.

The Church of the Nazarene is privileged to have fifteen outstanding laymen elected to its General Board. They serve without pay. These men are also leaders in their local churches and on their districts. They work unselfishly and faithfully in the interest of God's kingdom.

In this issue of the Herald we introduce these laymen who are serving during the current quadrennium—John T. Benson, publisher, Nashville, Tennessee; Willis Brown, businessman, Brush, Colorado; Lawrence Crawford, businessman, Greenville, Texas; L. W. Durkee, executive, Akron, Ohio; Howard Hamlin, surgeon, Chicago, Illinois; Harlan Heimiller, executive, Detroit, Michigan; Vernon Lunn, merchandise buyer, Kansas City, Missouri; Robert Mangum, physician, Nampa, Idaho; Edward S. Mann, college president, Quincy, Massachusetts; Wesley Mieras, attorney, Pasadena, California; L. D. Mitchell, chiropractor, Three Rivers, Michigan; Gordon Olsen, businessman, Eugene, Oregon; Kenneth Olsen, plumbing contractor, Newmarket, Ontario, Canada; Charles Oney, electrical engineer, Nashville, Tennessee; and Leonard Spangenberg, executive, Waban.

NO DOUBT it is scriptural to point out, "Like priest, like people," but it was Hosea who wrote, "Like people, like priest" (4:9). The inner strength of the Church of the Nazarene lies in her sanctified, dedicated laity. Every assignment in Kingdom building in our connection must be viewed ultimately through the eyes of the typical Nazarene layman, for the church is no stronger than the average layman in the local congregation.

The words of the Manual, however, are well taken when we read, "The perpetuity and the efficiency of the Church of the Nazarene depend largely upon the spiritual qualifications, the character, and the manner of life of its ministers." But these ministers must work through the laymen in the local church if the work of evangelism in the community is to be effective and world-wide.

Some years ago I heard Dr. Chapman declare his faith in the soundness and future of our church. He did it in the following hypothetical situation. He declared that if an accident should occur in which all of the general superintendents should be killed suddenly, the district superintendents would meet shortly and elect other men to take their places and the work of God would go on unhindered. Then he further projected the hypothetical case in observing that if all of the district superintendents should die on the same night as the general superintendents the districts would meet and elect new district superintendents and these in turn would elect general superintendents. Dr. Chapman insisted that this major adjustment could be made in our church without changing our mission or message. Then he staggered my imagination by taking the imaginary situation a step further. He said that if in some strange holocaust all of the ministers should be wiped out on the same night as the district superintendents and general superintendents, God would call new ministers out of the laity and the church would elect new leaders out of these ministers and the work would go on without deviation.

All of this simply confirms our central conviction that the inner strength of the church lies in a Spirit-filled, dedicated laity. The largest army of dedicated workers in our connection now is made up of Sunday school teachers who are essentially laymen.

Even in the over-all leadership of our church from the beginning years, we have not hesitated to keep the membership of the General Assembly in balance between ministers and laymen. The same proportion is also carefully observed in the election of the General Board membership, which serves as an executive committee between General Assemblies.

When God looks for ministers in our church He looks to a sanctified, committed laity in which to find them. He finds His missionaries there too. He is trusting them today to carry on the message and mission that they have received. May their faith survive the onslaughts of unbelief and fear!

The GIVING

By GRACE V. WATKINS

Oh, give a smile and someone’s day
Will be a sunshine-lovely way.
Oh, give a song, alight bright,
And someone’s heart will shine with light.
Oh, give a prayer and someone’s grief
Will lessen with renewed belief.
Oh, give a witness and you may lead
Someone to the very throne of God!

He Said

“I Was Embarrassed!”

I LEFT CHURCH with the words still ringing in my ears. The district superintendent had said, “I was embarrassed! Here I was facing God, and felt, ‘What a little bit I have done!’ ”

He had been in an accident, his car rolled over and over, and this is what he had thought while it was rolling. He came through the accident unjured, though for a moment he thought he had met his Maker.

The words kept going over in my mind, “Embarrassed, embarrassed!” Yet it was a district superintendent who had said it—a man who had done a tremendous job as a pastor, and now serving in a larger capacity, whose whole lifework is service to God and the church.

This has stayed with me, and I have thought. What have I done as a member of the church? Does God require less of me? Is there a double standard? I feel like I must be able to meet the same God. He expects no less than my best. No, my duties are not the same. But in my church. Am I doing my best? If I were to meet God tonight, what would be my feelings?

Every day we go rushing busily from one thing to another. We say, “Tomorrow we’ll do something for Christ.” But what of today? What if today should be our last?

On September 3, Rev. and Mrs. J. O. Young celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary by holding open house in the Missionary Room of the College Church in Nampa, Idaho. Brother Young has served the Church of the Nazarene in many capacities until his retirement in 1956 at the age of seventy-four. Their children, Ruth Lindblom and Est Young, were hosts at the reception.

Rev. Hugh H. Gorman of Scorton Church, Glasgow, has accepted the call to the pastorate at Troon, Ayrshire, Scotland.

CALLING HIS FAMILY TOGETHER in the “sitting room” one evening, my Father said, “I feel we must have family prayer, and I need you boys to help me.” Then, going down the line one by one he asked, “Will you help me?” Tearfully, all agreed.

I shall never forget the thrill of that night! My father had been a Christian long before I was born, but for some reason unknown to me, he had never had family prayers, although “thanks” at the table was as regular as the meals we ate. That look on his face, the choke in his throat, that quiver in his voice, as he asked me, “Will you help me have prayers every night?” I shall never forget. I answered in the affirmative.

Having left the farm and moved to the city, we had found plenty of leisure time. About then the holiness folks started a revival, and our family was attending that meeting. The fact that my father was receiving some spiritual help from the holiness revival was evidenced by his starting to hold family prayers.

As a boy thirteen years of age, I was greatly impressed as the scripture was read and Father led in prayer. He told the Lord all about the family—calling each one by name. The Fold was so very near, and I felt that a new day had come to our home.

That night settled it for me. Right then and there I resolved, When I have a home of my own, I am going to have a family altar. That was forty-four years ago, but the memory of it all is still clear and strong.

Years later I married a fine Christian young lady, who the same day said, “We are starting out to build a home. Neither of us knows much about it: so let’s start with a family altar.” We did! That was thirty-seven years ago, and we have maintained daily family prayers ever since. In the hope that I may help some reader, I want to suggest:

You must start. This is the big thing. Begin! Start! Commence! Call the family around; admit your failure for not doing it before. Read some scripture and pray with the family daily. Teach the children to pray. We start with the youngest every night, and then on up the line until we have all prayed. But you must begin. You must start. Half the battle is won when once you have started.

II
Having started your family prayers, now plan to keep it up in spite of hindrances. There will be times when it will seem hard—but pray anyway. Company may come, kinsfolk may come, but this is your home. Calmly announce your purpose to continue your daily prayers. Do this before you send the children to bed. God will bless you, and you will feel stronger. There will be days when you do not feel like praying—but pray anyway. “The family that prays together, stays together.”

III
Family prayer conducted regularly and joyfully, with every member of the family participating, builds a strong Christian faith. Children of all ages need the assurance that comes only from meeting God daily around the family altar. Our three sons finished high school and, so far as I know, they kept their Christian faith and Christian experience. Regular family worship together around the altar at home was a stronghold during those adolescent years.

IV
Give the Bible a large place in your family worship. Nothing is more important to the growing family than to give the Bible its rightful place around the family altar. Here is one of the strongest commands given to parents:

“And thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might. And these words, which I command thee this day, shall be in thine heart: and thou shalt teach them diligently unto thy children, and shalt talk of them when thou sittest in thine house, and when thou walkest by the way, and when thou liest down, and when thou risest up” (Deuteronomy 6:5-7).

Family prayer strengthens the spiritual union of husband and wife and enables them to have their prayers answered: “Likewise, ye husbands, . . . giving honour unto the wife, . . . being heirs together of the grace of life; that your prayers be not hindered” (1 Peter 3:7). If you have not already started your family altar, why not do it tonight? God will bless you. I am praying for you!
The enduring strength of any church is the stature of her laymen. The Church of the Nazarene is thrice blessed in the quality of lay leadership God has given across the years. From the beginning, laymen have shared responsibility for leadership and policy making in the church. Equal representation of ministers and laymen on denominational boards and in the General Assembly of the church challenges the best in consecrated lay leadership in the denomination.

Our readers will appreciate the testimonies and statements which follow, written by the lay members of the General Board, and gathered by Rev. Dean Wessels as secretary of the General Stewardship Committee.

John T. Benson, Jr., was born in Nashville, Tennessee. He still lives there and owns and operates the John T. Benson Publishing Company, which specializes in the publication of sacred music.

For six years he has represented the Eastern Geographical Zone on the General Board.

Known to his close friends as “John T.” he has served in Nashville First Church as choir director and as a member of the church board. He is also a member of the Tennessee District Advisory Board and the Board of Trevecca Nazarene College.

He met his wife, Jimmie R., at Trevecca Nazarene College. They have two sons and three daughters—John T. III, Robert G., Mary Laura, Carolyn, and Eve.

The Church of the Nazarene appreciates John T. Benson, Jr., and the contribution he is making.

What the Church of the Nazarene Means to Me

IT IS HARD for me to imagine what it would be like away from the Church of the Nazarene. My earliest recollections are those associated with the church.

I grew up in a Nazarene parsonage—several of them, in fact. I doubt that any family had more fun in a parsonage than we did. The visitors in our home were almost always Nazarenes. Men like “Uncle Bud” Robinson, J. G. Morrison, J. B. Chapman were often in our home, and many of the things I believe today came from their example while they were staying at our house.

I attended one of our colleges for a while and while there met and made friends who are still the ones we most enjoy being with.

I met my wife at a Nazarene district assembly and eighteen months later we were married in one of our Nazarene churches. Our children were dedicated to the Lord at a Nazarene altar and are members now of the Church of the Nazarene.

The church has afforded me a place to serve, a place to worship, a place to have fellowship. No laymen anywhere enjoy better ministry than do we in the Church of the Nazarene. Our pastors, evan gelists, and leaders are the best to be found anywhere.

No greater pleasure is afforded a layman in the Church of the Nazarene than serving the Lord and the church in the task that we have to do. I have never found any group of people anywhere that are better.

This matter of stewardship is a simple accounting matter. For every privilege there is an equal responsibility, and vice versa. I intend to continue to serve the church and the Lord so long as I am permitted to do so.

—Willis Brown

The life of Lawrence Crawford, layman from Greenville, Texas, is rich in Nazarene tradition. He was saved and sanctified in a revival meeting when he was sixteen years of age. In 1933 he met and married a Nazarene minister's daughter by the name of Naomi Bast from Peniel, Texas. For years Lawrence and Naomi have served graciously and gladly in the Greenville church. Their two children, Donna Kaye and Willis, have now established homes of their own.

Lawrence's service record is an impressive one. He has been a Sunday school teacher since he was seventeen years of age, has served on the District Advisory Board for twenty years, and has been a member of the Bethany Nazarene College Board of Regents for four years. He has served as a member of the General Board for seven years.

Opportunities for Christian Witness in My Chosen Profession

I OWN AND OPERATE a complete food store, with a variety department. I come in contact with a cross section of our city of 20,000 people, right down where they live, in selling to them and buying from the wholesalers and producers. I meet another group of business and professional men through the Lions Club and Chamber of Commerce. Many opportunities have been presented to me to influence the very needy of my city through my more than twenty-five years of social service work.

It is always a pleasure to witness for Jesus Christ. I make my living by running a store, but my occupation is really working for the kingdom of God.

My store is on the corner next to the post office, and each week I have hundreds of calls for tobacco. My store does not handle tobacco. This gives me an opportunity to witness for Christ and to explain that the use of tobacco, as well as the sale of it, is against my conscientious scruples. Often I am referred to as "the holiness man that runs the store on the corner by the post office."

—Lawrence Crawford

In business life Mr. L. W. Durkee is manager of Personnel Services for the Goodyear International Corporation. In church life he is beginning his twenty-first year as superintendent of the Sunday school of Akron, Ohio, First Church. He is a member of the Akron District Advisory Board and of the Board of Trustees of Eastern Nazarene College. He is a lay representative from the Eastern Geographical Zone on the General Board.

He is known to his close friends as "Larry," and has been a member of the Church of the Nazarene since 1929. He and his wife, Luie, have one daughter, Joanne (Mrs. D. W. Holland).

To Lawrence W. Durkee we say "thank you" for taking his Christian stewardship seriously. His church is happy to claim him as a member of its General Board.

Laymen—Sent of God

The Lord . . . sent them . . . into every city and place, whither he himself would come (Luke 10:1).

In these days of gnawing fear, Jesus still wants to send Christian laymen into places where He wishes entrance. Into factories, stores, offices, schools, and homes—wherever members of our shattered brotherhood are found—the Lord sends laymen with the glorious gospel of full salvation.

God depends upon men. God has always called and used men in the spread of the gospel.

God sends men from every walk of life into every walk of life. He wants men whose lives are radiant and circumspect, so that the light of God is not distorted as it goes through the prism of their lives.

God directs obedient men to the persons who can be reached through their lives and testimonies.

At the age of twelve I was genuinely converted, but while attending college I almost lost my Christian faith. I found my way back to God, and at an altar in the Church of the Nazarene I received the baptism with the Holy Spirit.

I am grateful for the abundant opportunities to witness for Christ while working for thirty-six years in the office of a large corporation. A layman must take his stand for Christ at any cost. He must be courteous to all and scrupulously honest. If he will take the Book of God for the rule of his faith and practice, he will never go astray and God will bless him and make him a blessing.

—L. W. Durkee

Not what we give, but what we share. For the gift without the giver is bare.
Send a prayer with your gift on November 19—Thanksgiving Sunday.
Dr. Howard H. Hamlin, Chicago surgeon, has served on the General Board as representative from the Central Geographical Zone since 1952.

He is well known in holiness and evangelical circles as a speaker and author. Dr. Hamlin took his medical work at the University of Denver. He spent two years teaching in holiness colleges before going into medicine.

It was early in 1931 and the great depression was eating away any financial security which the average American had. Twenty months before, I had been one of the few fortunate high school seniors, of the class of '29, who landed a job—and with a good company. The pay was little and the work hard. Desperately I maintained a precarious grip on the job for twenty months; I even survived two general layoffs; but the Rocky Mountain Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company had to slash desperately again to survive. The twenty-six line gangs in Colorado were reduced to six—and all unmarried men were laid off "for the duration."

I clutched my last pay check of thirty-six dollars with near the finiality of a starving man viewing his last crust. I had already decided where it would be spent, for a few weeks previously the dentist had found thirteen cavities in my teeth which must be filled to save them. He had offered to fill them all for thirty-five dollars.

The next day was the Sabbath; and Rev. Melza Brown, the pastor, had decided to lift the debt from Denver First Church. When the pledge had reached the "Who'll give five?" stage, my hand hesitatingly went up—after all, I could keep a couple of cavities. Then he began to preach. I didn't hear the sermon, for the Holy Spirit was saying, "I'd like you to give that entire pay check!"

By the time of the benediction the struggle was over: I had resigned myself to be the only teenager I knew gumming my food until I could buy false teeth. Without fanfare, I endorsed the check

Two or three days later the dentist telephoned, "Howard, I need some shelves in my office. Do you think that you and your dad could build them for me? We'll trade carpentry for dentistry!"

Not a bad transaction: the dentist had his shelves, I had my fillings (after thirty years some are still there), and God had the money! But more important—I had a lesson in stewardship that has become a basic part of my life.

Recently there was another building program in another city. Again I made a pledge which was of such an amount that faith and prayer became an integral part in its payment. The amount was many times greater than my teen pledge, but God's grace worked just the same; for three months later my secretary happily announced to me that the gross income of the office was up 30 per cent.

But whether one prospered is not the basic consideration of stewardship, for we do not strike a bargain with God. We do not offer Him that which is His already with the stipulation that He prosper us in return.

One's total resources must be constantly at the disposal of Divinity. Whether I have possessions or not is unimportant. That I hold them with a spirit of inward detachment is basic. This is Christian stewardship.

—H. H. Hamlin, M.D.

Mr. Harlan Heinmiller represents the Central Geographical Zone on the General Board. He is an executive in the Fisher Body division of General Motors and has been an instructor in General Motors leadership training classes since 1950. In his local church he has served as Sunday school superintendent, N.Y.P.S. president, chairman of the church school board, and as a member of the church board. He has served on the district as N.Y.P.S. president and as secretary of the District Advisory Board. Mr. Heinmiller is a member of Detroit First Church. He, his wife, Dorothy, a daughter, Joenne, and a son, Don, are making a vital contribution to the Church of the Nazarene and to the Kingdom as a whole.

IN OUR AGE of accelerated tempo with its related problems, not only missiles but also men need guidance.

The Polaris missile with its submarine carrier requires a quarter of a million interrelated and interacting parts. In the construction of this multi-million-dollar projectile, of prime importance is the guidance system. The amount of power generated and the pay load capacity are important, but these must be properly directed to accomplish the desired purposes. Compliance with certain conditions and the proper use of available resources have produced an efficient guidance system for the Polaris.

The wisdom writer in Proverbs outlines a condition upon which men can receive guidance for their lives: "In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths" (3:6). Not the least of the many ways in which we can acknowledge Him is that of faithful Christian stewardship. Here again the proper use of resources is of utmost importance: (1) the redeeming of time, for our days are few; (2) the effective development and Christian use of talent; (3) the proper use of possessions, which includes giving His tithes and my offerings.

In a fast-moving and complex age of many interrelated and interacting forces, my point of beginning must be that of a faithful steward. This is my privilege. The promise is that, if I acknowledge Him in these and all other ways, He will provide the necessary guidance for my life.

Mr. Vernon Lunn, well-known layman on the Kansas City District, designates the influence of a Christian home and the example set by his father and mother (Dr. and Mrs. M. Lunn) as a major factor leading to his conversion. Vernon's "stewardship of time" includes the superintendency of the Sunday school at Kansas City First Church.
He also serves as treasurer of the Kansas City District Rescue Mission. At the General Assembly of 1960 he was elected to represent the West Central Geographical Zone on the General Board.

Vernon, his wife, Carolyn, and two daughters,
Sharon and Susan, comprise a radiant and effective "family team" whose influence is felt among

What My Church Means to Me

THE CHURCH OF THE NAZARENE means a great many things to me, but I think that its most vital contribution to my life is in establishing a center from which radiates every aspect of my Christian experience. Without such a hub for my personal devotion, my home life, my church activities, and my business interests—my entire pattern of Christian living—would be chaotic, without form and void.

The Church of the Nazarene offers me a place where my time and means and whatever talent I may have can be centered in a well-organized program planned for the advancement of God's kingdom.

As a father I appreciate the church's activities in the interests of children and youth. I am thankful for teachings that adhere to Biblical standards of holiness, yet furnish wholesome outlets for the social instincts of Christian young people.

Perhaps most important of all, my church has been a constant challenge to seek daily a consciousness of God. Without this sense of the divine presence, all activity however faithfully performed, all standards however rigidly enforced and adhered to,
are at best professional religion.

I thank God for the Church of the Nazarene:
what it has meant in my childhood, youth, and young manhood; what it means to me now each day; and what it has given me in hope and assurance for the days ahead.

—Vernon E. Lunn

from Washington University in St. Louis, Missouri.

Dr. Bob, his wife, Lois, and their four children, Bob, Patty, Mary, and Daniel, make their home in in Nampa, as are Dr. Bob, his brother, Dr. Tom Mangum, and his father, Dr. Thomas E. Mangum, who comprise the clinic staff.

Are You Glad?—Then Give!

THE HERITAGE of this generation of Nazarenes is one rich in the blessings of the past and present, and richer in the promise of the future.

Someone has said that the future is as bright as the promises of God. I believe this, and yet

By the gift of your hand show the love of your heart. Thanksgiving Offering,
November 19.

I know that God works out His will and His promises often by the use of God-given human talents and resources through individuals.

God needs you and your resources for the future of His kingdom. He will bless you some if you will serve Him and tithe—a blessing of duty fulfilled. He will bless you more if you give until you know He will have to provide the increase.

Are you glad you are a Nazarene today? Give it back! And prove it!

Edward S. Mann was converted and sanctified at Eastern Nazarene College, where he is now president. He feels that Christian college administration is his calling, and his contribution in that field has been outstanding. He and his wife, Cora, are the parents of four sons

—Edward, Merritt, Robert, and Richard

His civic and community interests are many and varied. Among them are the United Nations Coun­ ic of the South Shore, the Quincy Council of the Boy Scouts of America, the South Shore Mental Health Association. He is also director of the New England Evangelistic Association. His service in the local church includes the chairmanship of the Finance Committee.

Dr. Mann cites a Christian home and a Nazarene college as being strong influences in guiding him to become a Christian.

He is one of the educational representatives on the General Board.

THE PROGRESS and prosperity of our day have brought good times, but they have also brought an evil spirit—the spirit of materialism. It is a satanic force let loose on the world through human self-centeredness. It is enveloping the world like a cloud and is gradually seeping into our homes, our churches, our colleges, our civic life, and most insidious of all, into our thinking. We see its effects but do not always recognize the cause.

We have wondered why we never have enough for world missions or Christian education without realizing that the extra money we have spent for more expensive cars than necessary, or for more luxurious homes than necessary, or for any of a thousand different items which are a part of today's extravagant living, would be more than ample to supply the pressing needs of the church.

Our task as Christian laymen is to make sure that the tide of materialism which sweeps the country does not engulf us until we too say to our souls, "Take thine ease, eat, drink, and be merry." We must be wary in our acceptance of the abundance of our day lest, unwittingly, we hug a poisonous serpent to our breasts.

The glad giving of ourselves to the cause of Christian stewardship will provide us with adequate channels for the use of our money, time, and talents. It may also assist us in creating a barrier against the spirit of materialism and result, eventually, in the saving of our own souls.

—Edward S. Mann

J. Wesley Mieras, lay member of the General Board, represents the Southwest Geographical Zone. He is an attorney in Los Angeles and finds ample opportunity to witness for his Christ and for his church.

In 1937 he graduated cum laude from Pasadena College. He holds degrees from the University of Southern California (M.B.A., 1939; I.L.B., 1948), and in 1960 was granted an L.L.D. by Pasadena College.

"Wes" is a Sunday school teacher, and chairman of the board of trustees in his local church. He is a member of the District Advisory Board, secretary of the Pasadena College Board of Trustees, and president of the Pasadena College Alumni Association.

He holds the rank of commander in the U.S. Naval Reserve and has served for six years as a commanding officer of his unit.

The Mieras family is composed of Wesley; his wife, Joan; and two daughters, Barbara and Tina, ages fourteen and eleven respectively. Laymen like Wesley Mieras are a credit to any community, and the Church of the Nazarene is proud to claim him.

Christian Stewardship . . . My Privilege

IT IS THRILLING to realize that God has entrusted us, as stewards, with the assets of life including time, personality, and financial resources. Stewardship is more than the giving of our economic gain; it is that which happens to us and our goods when God has His way with us. Christian stewardship has been defined as the practice of systematic and proportionate giving of time, abilities, and material possessions, based on the conviction that these are a trust from God, to be used in His service for the benefit of all mankind in grateful acknowledgment of Christ's redeeming love. What a responsibility and privilege each of us shares in this area of Christian living!

Stewardship of prayer challenges us at the level of our devotion to Jesus Christ. What a privilege we have in remembering in prayer all who are committed to full-time service in the church, including those who serve both at home and around the world! Let us remember too all the departments of our local church, including those in which we may not share a specific task. Then may we not be negligent in praying for those outside the church as we seek guidance in opportunities for Christian service and in witnessing to our friends, neighbors, and business acquaintances.

Stewardship of income and the making of financial contributions commence with a generous attitude of giving without thought of return. If each of us follows the standard of proportionate giving, the effect will be twofold. Not only will the church's outreach be continually extended, but our own spiritual lives cannot help but be enriched, and our horizon of Christian experience enlarged.

I have a very real privilege in the area of stewardship of time, giving a proportionate share in Christian service. Applying the principles of stewardship to life is no small task. Each of us has resources of time and ability which God can use. It is both a privilege and a responsibility to develop these in Christian service. Let us look about and search out the opportunities to serve by inquiring of our pastor or other leader wherein we may be of assistance, not waiting for him to come to us! Stewardship is broad; it calls upon our material resources, but more than that, it demands our lives! Let us exercise the privilege of sowing bountifully, for therein shall we also reap bountifully.

—J. Wesley Mieras
Dr. L. D. Mitchell, newly elected member of the General Board, is lay representative from the Central Geographical Zone. He is a chiropractic doctor and owns and operates the Mitchell Hospital in Three Rivers, Michigan. You will enjoy his "stewardship testimony."

THE GREATEST COMPLIMENT I ever received was from a lady who lived several miles from our city. She called the office asking if I was "that Christian doctor."

I have believed in tithing since I was a boy in my teens and tithed faithfully even when I was not living a Christian life. I believe that God honored my giving even in those early, formative years of my life.

Over the years it has been easy for me to give money for God's work in building the Kingdom. As I have matured and grown older and my business has thrived, it has been necessary for me to have an auditor who has handled the bookkeeping for the business. I informed him that I wanted to give one-tenth of my income to Christ and the church and for him to make a regular column each month to show my tithe. Over the years I became a bit careless in checking the figures—just accepting the amount shown.

However, one Sunday morning a few months ago, as our pastor, Rev. D. E. Fuller, was leading the congregation in the responsive reading on stewardship (No. 41 in the hymnals), the Lord illuminated the following verses to me: "Honour the Lord with thy substance, and with the first-fruits of all thine increase; so shall thy barns be filled with plenty, and thy presses shall burst out with new wine" (Proverbs 3:9-10).

I had a good cry and was happy because the Lord spoke to me plainly through His Word. At first I did not think of anything being wrong or that perhaps I wasn't giving the Lord His share of the tithe. In a few days I began checking the books each Saturday night, and I found that my items that I called increase were not considered so by the accountant, as the tithe was being figured from the net increase.

Now I am paying the tithe according to the way it should be, and, oh, what a joy it is to know that, really and truly, I am keeping books the way God has shown me! The farm on which we live has produced more this year than any year since we have lived on it. The silos are full and the last of the crops are not in yet. I am sure God's Word will be literally and realistically fulfilled, just as He has said in His Word.

"A man of many interests and a single purpose" describes Gordon Olsen, General Board member from the Northwest Geographical Zone. Mr. Olsen puts his Christian influence to work in his home town. Aside from owning and operating a business, he is president of Newton Foundation (Christian House on University of Oregon campus)—a position he has held since 1949. He is a member of the Eugene Public School Board and chairman of the Metropolitan Inter-church Committee. He has given unstintingly of his time to his local church, his district, and the general church. His wife, Rhoda, and his two sons, Gordon and Galen, bear radiant testimony to the fact that Christian stewardship pays rich dividends in church life, community life, and family life.

"WE CAN'T AFFORD TO TITHE," is not an unusual adult comment. Perhaps if we pay everything else first, this statement is true. But Matthew 6:33 tells us, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you." God must come first. The tithe must come first.

When we pay the tithe first, God miraculously makes the nine-tenths do double duty. This is a good business principle. It helps us organize our finances. The principle of tithing and giving to God enables us to make money our slave and not our master. It makes me a better businessman.

As is true in all avenues of our Christian living, God will permit us to be tried on our material commitment. I can honestly say, however, that I have yet to meet the person who put God first in all areas of life, including tithing, who did not come out ahead materially as well as spiritually.

I do not believe people tithe or give to receive material remuneration. But it is a fact that if we put God first in material things He opens up new avenues of spiritual blessing and service. There is a direct ratio between our material commitment and our capacity for spiritual blessing. Furthermore, a generous attitude in our paying tithes and Massachusetts. The testimonies of some of the above-named laymen will be found on other pages of this issue.

Not only is the General Board privileged to have these laymen within its ranks, but each district and each local church has its outstanding laymen who are making a tremendous contribution in all areas of church work. Their testimonies will be heard from many Nazarene pulpits next Sunday.

The domestic membership of the Church of the Nazarene is 318,597. Adding to this the 52,581 membership on the foreign fields, we have a total of 372,178. Of this number, 7,772 are ministers—ordained, licensed, active, and retired. This means that of every 48 members approximately 47 are laymen.

Laymen, we 7,772 ministers could not serve the Church of the Nazarene without you. Every day we appreciate you, but on Sunday, October 15, we salute you.

I trust that LAYMEN'S SUNDAY in your church will be a day to remember!

General Stewardship Secretary

Christian parents, Christian friends, and a Christian college have helped to make Charles Edward Oney the strong and conscientious layman that he is.

He is a member of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers and is firmly convinced that his occupation is God's will for his life.

In his local church he has served as Sunday school teacher, Sunday school superintendent, and choir director.

His wife, Bernadine, and his daughters, Deborah Charlene, Linda Darlene, Katherine Sue, and Patricia Louise, fill an important place in his life and in the life of the local church.

Charles Oney is a man of which his minister father can well be proud. He has served as a lay representative on the General Board for nine years.

The Church of the Nazarene is an important part of my earliest recollections. I was reared in a Nazarene parsonage and grew to love and appreciate the people called Nazarenes.

I feel that the Church of the Nazarene has provided for me a place in life that may be compared with the eagle in the story of the eagle and the oyster. When God asked the oyster what kind of life he wanted to live, he replied that he wanted to live a lazy life at the bottom of the sea. He wanted to be fed by merely opening his shell and letting the water flow through. God granted the oyster his life at the bottom of the sea, and the oyster lived in the dark thereafter. He knew nothing of what was going on in the world around him. On the other hand, the eagle told God that he wanted to live atop a mountain, search for his own food, and make his own way in life. God granted the eagle his request also. The eagle grew with the changing world and observed it. He lived in the light. As a member of the Church... of the Nazarene, God has shown me the world in its true light.

First, the Church of the Nazarene gave to me Christian parents, who guided my childhood until I was able to see life in its true perspective.

Second, the Church of the Nazarene gave to me, through Eastern Nazarene College, the education I needed without destroying my faith in God and in the Bible. Instead of being destroyed, my faith was strengthened and enriched. The church, through Eastern Nazarene College, also gave me a Christian companion who has enriched my life beyond measure. Many Christian young people have failed in life and lost their Christian experience because they chose non-Christian companions.

Third, the Church of the Nazarene has given me a place of service. We do not feel worthy of the place in which we have been asked to serve, but we are doing our best to fill it and to give God the glory for every achievement in our lives.

We will continue to serve God through the Church of the Nazarene, giving our time, talents, and treasures that this great message of holiness may reach the uttermost parts of the earth.

—CHARLES EDWARD OXLEY

Dr. Leonard Spangenberg, representative on the General Board from the Eastern Geographical Zone, makes his home in Waban, Massachusetts.

He met his wife, Dorothy, at the Malden Church of the Nazarene. They have raised their son, Robert, and their daughter, Suzanne, in the church.

Dr. Spangenberg holds two degrees from Boston University (B.B.A. and M.B.A.), and was granted an L.L.D. by Olivet Nazarene College.

He has ample opportunity to witness for Christ among his business associates. You will enjoy his definite and inspirational stewardship testimony.

Christian Stewardship . . . My Privilege

IT WAS my extreme good fortune to join the great Church of the Nazarene when a mere lad. Since time flies, this was only forty-three years ago. Although young, it was not long before I realized the vital need of applying true Christian stewardship to my daily living. This not only meant my time but a tithe of my pin money. Sometimes, in fact most of the time, my monetary resources were as thin as a pin.

Since those early days I have been a very ardent tither of the means with which the Lord has blessed me. However, to make sure I was actually tithing, since the very day I started work I have recorded in my tithe book every penny I have returned to the Lord's work. It was surprising to me at first, for I thought I was giving more than my tithe. The tithe book soon straightened me out on this score.

The incidents of blessings I have personally received would almost be countless. I tithe, however, not for the expected blessings which always seem to come tenfold, but because it is my duty as a true Nazarene. In the New Testament it is driven home time and time again, frequently in headlines, sometimes in telegraphic style, many times in whole chapters. To me it is a command. I have obeyed. The result: a deepened spiritual life that has helped me carry on when all has looked hopeless; or when things have looked bright, to be truly grateful.

THE CHURCH AT WORK

HOME MISSIONS
ROY SMELT, Secretary
Revival News

In a wire published in this column on August 9 prayer was requested for the tent meetings which were being held in one of our new home mission outposts, Newfoundland. Rev. Verbal E. Williams, who is pioneering the Newfoundland work and pastoring our church in St. John's, has sent in this report of the meetings:

"On Sunday, August 27, we closed six weeks of tent meetings in Newfoundland with Rev. R. T. Schick, evangelist, and Mr. Cedric Sanders, song evangelist. The meetings were an outstanding success and indicated a great future for the Church of the Nazarene in Newfoundland. We had a total attendance of 1,300 people, of whom 275 were in a Nazarene service for the first time. The last service was held in Carbonear, a town of 5,000 people, about 70 miles from St. John's. Seventy Newfoundland people attended. A number expressed their desire for the meetings to continue, so, after much prayer, it was decided to continue weekly meetings in the tent until a hall could be secured. There are good prospects for a strong Church of the Nazarene in the town of Carbonear, and it will be necessary to secure property in the near future.

"Our church is new to the people of Newfoundland. Many had never heard of the Church of the Nazarene before, but there is a hunger in the hearts of the people for a spiritual church. It is up to us to enter these open doors and bring to Newfoundland a church that believes in revivals and to provide for them a church home where they will get spiritual help. We are at present building our first church in the province of Newfoundland in Mt. Pearl, a suburb of St. John's, the capital city. We hope to have it completed and ready for dedication in November when Dr. V. H. Lewis, general superintendent, plans to visit. Please join us in prayer for this needed field."

In the early spring Rev. Fletcher Spruce conducted revival services in our Mt. Hope church in the Canal Zone, one of our home missions fields. Later he graphically wrote an interesting story under the heading "The Price of Salvation".

Sergeants are supposed to be gruff and tough, but this one smiled as he came into the service, and shook hands with everyone. And his four stepson were as pleasant as their sergeant-major dad, to whom they clung with obvious affection. The genuine ring in his testimony made me thrill. "I'll tell you his story later."

And what a story it was! This career soldier had married a German girl during the war. Neither had ever been a churchgoing person, so the couple lived the typical army camp life of sinful indulgence through the years. Now that their military assignment located them in the Canal Zone, divine providence began to unfold. Missionary James H. Jones invited the sergeant and his family to the Church of the Nazarene, and they responded a few times. Then came a revival with Evangelist C. William Fisher, who stated in a sermon, "Salvation is a bargain at any price."

The heavyhearted sergeant major bowed at the altar and was saved, but his hardhearted wife rejected God and deserted her husband and her four sons, and came back to the States to plunge deeper into sin. His religion cost him his wife—but his love for God compensated for the loss of his companion, the mother of his four sons. But his is a smile of faith! And many are joining him for the salvation of his wife! The end is not yet!

Sitka, Alaska

Rev. Clark H. Lewis, pastor of our Sitka church, reports his people are "still riding the deep, moving wave of God's touch" from services held in August with Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Earle, of our Seminaries, as workers.

Mrs. Earle taught the children each afternoon and a contest she held helped the church gain two new families for the Sunday school. Dr. Earle preached the Bible doctrines with insight, capturing the attention of young and old with his vivid word-pictures of Bible events. Twenty four seekers knelt at the altar, and the Christians one and all testified to a deepening of their spiritual lives.

SERVICEMEN'S COMMISSION

PAUL SKILES, Director

Colonel Robert H. Augustinus of the United States Air Force writes:

"In my thirty years of military service, a major portion of this service as a commander, I have found few chaplains, irrespective of their faith, who measure up to Chaplain Donnelly. I have found him intensely sincere in his service to military personnel. He is sought after by the civilian churches in the community, who respect his opinions and advice."

We have recently received word from the Chief of Chaplains Office in Washington, D.C., that as of 30 June 61 JAMES E. MORRIS received a temporary promotion in the United States Army to the rank of lieutenant colonel. Our church extends its heartiest congratulations!

We Had Our First Service in Christiansted

We had our first Nazarene service Sunday afternoon in the home of a Puerto Rican family here in Christiansted. There were twenty-nine folk present. This is a real beginning. Next Sunday we will have a Puerto Rican service in the same home, and a Christian service here in our own home. We are searching for a place we can rent for services, but so far have not found anything. We are sure God will help us if we keep praying and looking. To this end, we would appreciate your prayers also.

These folk need the gospel message, but there are many problems to overcome, and many adjustments to make. Would you especially remember our children in prayer? Woody and Ruthie are attending a public high school here and are the only Stateside children in the church.—Grace Prescott, Virgin Islands.

New Church in Brazil

A new Church of the Nazarene was opened in Sao Paulo, Brazil, in June. During the first month they averaged fifty in Sunday school, and twenty people were at the altar seeking salvation. The Reverend Mr. Lima is their pastor. He would deeply appreciate the prayers of Nazarenes in the rest of the world, that this new work for God shall flourish and become a bright witness for Christ in this great city of Brazil.—Nazarene missionaries in Brazil.

Wanted: Thompson's Chain Reference Bibles

Does anyone have a copy of Thompson's Chain Reference Bible in good condition, that he is not using and would like to have it at work on a mission field? If so, please write Miss Lorraine Schulz, Manjaca, via Lorenz Marques, Mozambique, Africa, for directions on how to mail it. She is in need of four or five copies of this edition of the Bible for Bible school use.

DISTRICT ACTIVITIES

Northwest Oklahoma District Assembly and Conventions

Northwest Oklahoma District achieved the rank of a "10 per cent" district this year according to reports completed at the district assembly. A total of 741,416 was given to world evangelism this year out of 742,117 paid out by local churches for all purposes.

Dr. W. H. Lewis presided masterfully and gracefully at the sessions in Bethany First Church, July 26 and 27. His challenge for evangelism in every church program this fall was an inspiration to laymen and pastors.

Rev. J. T. Gassett, presenting his ninth report as district superintendent, announced church membership had risen from 1,417 to 1,477 in those nine years.

Sunday school enrollment is now 8,991, a gain of 1,070 in nine years; average weekly attendance this year was 5,763. N.Y.P.S. membership stands at 1,821, and the N.F.M.S. membership at 3,136, a gain of 360 this year.

The N.F.M.S. under the leadership of Mrs. E. S. Phillips as district president, achieved its goals to become a "star" district.

Harmony and unity prevailed in the assembly sessions and in the election of officers and board members. Advisors and Board members elected were: H. L. Cred-dock, E. S. Phillips, W. J. Bryan, and E. S. Jenkins, secretary; Rev. Elmer McCormick, treasurer; Frances Hastings, N.Y.P.S. district secretary; Diane Harden and Philip Fletcher, N.F.M.S. members at large; Rev. Bob Moore and Rev. Bill Lewis, N.Y.A.F. members at large.

The convention concluded in the evening with the district Bible quiz and vocal and instrumental contests.

Indianapolis District youths are moving forward under the leadership of their district superintendent—their first term of office.

THE LOCAL CHURCHES

Evangelist J. H. Lanier writes: "I am now entering my twelfth year as an evangelist, and my second year as the host pastor of the Church of the Nazarene. God has been good to me; I conducted twenty-four revivals last year and worked with some wonderful Nazarene pastors and people. I am an open date for the month of January 1962 to February 1, then all the month of June (1962) and on into the fall months. Wife and I travel by small trailer, and will be glad to work with our pastors anywhere. Write me. Box 70, Bethany, Oklahoma.

Rev. C. D. Westhafer writes: "After completing eight years as pastor of our Wooster, Ohio, church, I have resigned to accept the work of the Spanish circuit in Toronto, Ontario, Canada. We leave a wonderful people in Wooster. God has helped us to pay the entire indebtedness on the brick church built during the past eight years. I have been in Ohio, and the N.Y.P.S. Convention.

We have a wonderful Nazarene pastors and people. I have been in twenty-three revival meetings; five in Missouri, seven in Indiana, five in Minnesota, two in Oklahoma, five in Kansas, and three in Texas. The Lord has blessed, and we have seen many people bow at the altar seeking God for pardon and heart purity. I have a good slate for the remainder of this year; then have an open date in January and one in February of 1962. Write me, Box 584, Bethany, Oklahoma.

Oklahoma, Texas, and Missouri are our top producing states, with an enrollment of 117 and an average attendance of 83; and 85 of these boys and girls were saved during the Bible school. Recently we broke all previous records with 113 present in Sunday school; our average for August of this year was 86, as compared to 49 last year. These months have been times of blessing, with and again and again. As life is daily, struck gold once, we must strike again satisfy forever the deer; and having gold in a dry gulch. Christ. To have the eternal God break into our daily routine is like striking with all thy soul, and with all thy mind the reflection of God in the face of Jesus run through a "maze of things" to see our hearts unto God. OPENING SERVICE, 7:30 p.m. (First Day)
THREE SERVICES ON THE SECOND DAY
10:30 a.m. 2:30 p.m. 7:30 p.m.

To know Him at all is to desire to know Him better.
The prophets told of God. So did the law and the Tabernacle and the sacrifices and the rituals. They spoke well, but "God, who at sundry times and in divers manners spoke in time past unto the fathers by the prophets, hath in these last days spoken unto us by his Son..." (Hebrews 1:1-2). The Word which was in the beginning became flesh and dwelt among us. As the law came by Moses, so grace and truth came by Jesus Christ.

Thus it was that the revelation of God reached its zenith in the person of Jesus Christ. "No man hath seen God at any time: the only begotten Son, which is in the bosom of the Father, he hath declared him" (John 1:18). Only Jesus could say, "He that hath seen me hath seen the Father." Supreme revelation! And to grow in the knowledge of God we must know Jesus Christ better.

It is important that we realize that Jesus came, not to destroy the law, but to fulfill it. The old regime was an idol, with all thy soul, and with all the mind. Matthew 22:37.

As the arid desert yeasts for water, so our hearts cry out for God. As the deer runs through the forests to the flowing stream to slake its thirst, so we run through a "maze of things" to see the reflection of God in the face of Jesus Christ. To have the eternal God break into our daily routine is like striking gold in a dry gulch.

But one downpour is not sufficient for the desert, neither will one drink satisfy forever the deer; and having struck gold once, we must strike again and again and again. As life is daily, so must be our communion with God.

Did You Know?

Nothing difficult about loving people who love you and being kind to a neighbor who is kind to you. But what about people who don't like you? And the neighbor who gets upset over everything? And the person who willfully misuses you: Jesus said to love them, pray for them, be kind to them. As we learn these things we know God better.

REV. ROBERT OWEN PARRY

Robert Owen Parry was born September 22, 1880, in Cardiff, Wales, and died December 24, 1960, at Allentown, Pennsylvania. When nine years of age he came to America with his parents, was converted in 1902, and began his ministry as a lay preacher in the Methodist church. After he was sanctified he became a fearless preacher. He was ordained by Dr. J. W. Goodwin in 1935. He served pastorates at Stroudsburg, Nazareth, Bethlehem, Reading, Philadelphia, Easton, Hanover, Lebanon, and Birdsboro, Pennsylvania. In recent years he had evangelized in the East, also in Florida and on the West Coast. His last whisper, as he lay on his hospital bed in Allentown Hospital, was, "I have fought a good fight...I have kept the faith." He is survived by his wife, Mapabelle Simpson, whom he married in 1902, and eleven children, many of whom are in the work of the Lord: Robert, a pastor at Lyons; Eldwood, a song evangelist; Bethlehem; Harold, pastor at Lansdale; John, pastor at Hanover; Paul, minister of music at Garden Grove, California; Betty, wife of Rev. Richard Smith of Towson, Maryland; Harrison, of Skidmore, Ohio; Mrs. Gertrude King, of Stroudsburg; Mrs. Catherine Ward, of Lebanon; Mr. and Mrs. Sue Muffett, of Bethlehem, Pennsylvania. Funeral service was conducted by his pastor, Rev. F. D. Koter, in Bethlehem First Church, assisted by Rev. Wm. C. Althouse, district superintendent, and other pastors. His sons in the ministry sang "The Last Mile of the Way," as requested by their father. Interment was in Memorial Park Cemetery, Bethlehem.

REV. HARRY M. PEAVEY

Harry M. Peavey, for many years a licensed minister on the New England and Maine districts, died May 15, 1961, at the Veterans' Administration Hospital, Togus, Maine, where he had been under treatment for eight weeks. He was born May 7, 1877. He first joined a holiness church in Haverhill, Massachusetts, and was a charter member of the Church of the Nazarene. He served as pastor of several churches in Maine, Vermont, and Connecticut. He was active as a supply pastor until a short time before his death. Funeral service was held in the Auburn Church of the Nazarene, where Brother and Sister Peavey were members. District Superintendent Joshua Wagner was in charge of the service, with several pastors assisting.

RECOMMENDATIONS

After several years of successful ministry as an evangelist, pastor, and educator in a sister denomination, Rev. Carl N. Hall has united with the Church of the Nazarene on the Philadelphia District. He is entering the field of education and is available for calls anywhere in the church. He is a forceful young preacher and possesses a pleasant personality. I am happy to recommend Brother Hall to our Nazarene pastors and people. Address him, 2225 E. Cedar Street, Allentown, Pennsylvania.—William C. Althouse, Superintendent of Philadelphia District.

James and Juanita Carmickle are re-entering the field as song evangelists beginning January 1. For a number of years they were active in various churches. They have their own house trailer and several musical instruments. They do children's work as well as care for the music revivals, conventions, and camp meetings. Address them, 4023 Mesa Avenue, Sarasota, Florida.—John L. Knight, Superintendent of Florida District.

WEDDING BELLS

Miss Ellen Smith of Allentown, Indiana, and Rev. Stuart McWhirter, Nazarene evangelist of the Alabama District, were united in marriage on August 10, 1962, in Centre Church of the Nazarene, many of whom Dr. G. B. Each year in January, the General Board approves the General Budget for the ensuing budget year, which begins on May 1 and closes on April 30. For a number of years the amount of General Budget received has somewhat exceeded the General Budget approved. In 1958 and 1959, the General Board approved a larger General Budget because of the increased needs of our world-wide evangelism program. By 1960, for the first time in a number of years, these increased needs surpassed the General Budget receipts. In fact, there was a shortage of more than $88,000. The approved General Budget for the 1961-62 budget year (closing April 30, 1962) is $44,000 above the amount received in the year of highest income. There must be more 10 per cent churches and 10 per cent districts than ever before if the banner of holiness is to continue to reach around the world during these days of increased need and inflation.

SPECIAL PRAYER IS REQUESTED

by a lady from Texas, in very poor health, that God will heal her body; by a reader in Colorado that "I may have a closer walk with God, that my five children may become better Christians, and that my husband may be saved—I need help badly"; by a friend in Tennessee that "all doubts will be erased from the minds of a young married couple and they will know just where they stand with God"; it is a serious matter with them.

by a long-time Nazarene and reader of the "Healing" who needs special help in prayer at this time for an unspoken request.

OCTOBER 11, 1961 (657) 17
PHILADELPHIA, PA. (SPECIAL) — Dr. D. Reginald Thomas, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in historic Germantown, Pennsylvania, has been selected to succeed the late Dr. Donald Grey Barnhouse as speaker on "The Bible Study Hour," an undenominational program of Bible study broadcast weekly by the National Broadcasting Company radio network and fifty independent stations throughout the country.

Former pastor of the noted Lindumian Presbyterian Church in his native Wales, Dr. Thomas inaugurated his radio ministry in 1914, when the British Broadcasting Corporation first carried his worship services on the BBC radio network appointed to the pulpit of the First Presbyterian Church in Germantown in 1915. Dr. Thomas has successfully continued his radio ministry in America with "The Pastor's Study," a half-hour weekly broadcast from Philadelphia.

World Vision to Sponsor All-Central American Pastors' Conference

Santo Domingo, R. O. (AP) — Approximately fifteen hundred evangelical ministers from seven countries are expected to attend an all-Central American Pastors' Conference in Guatemala, January 22-27, 1962. Sponsered by World Vision Inc., the program is coordinated by the Latin America Mission.

Rev. Juan M. Isasi of the L.A.M., in charge of arrangements and promotion, reports that enrollment is running so high that the site originally selected for the conference had to be set aside in favor of the spacious national industrial Exposition Park in Guatemala City.

Pastor delegates from Mexico, El Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua, Costa Rica, Panama, as well as Guatemala, have registered for the five-day conference.

Sen. Morse Says Catholics Must Modify Stand on Education

WASHINGTON, D. C. - Roman Catholics misjudged the temper of the people when they opposed aid to education unless such assistance was also given private and parochial schools.

Sen. Wayne Morse (D. Ore.) thus editorialized in a speech here on the subject of government aid in education. He accused the Catholic clergy of attempting to block "the legitimate aims of a majority of our people through pressure tactics."

Subsidizing church schools through grants would be unconstitutional, he told some 600 teacher-delegates from 44 states. He said, however, that he favored loans to private schools if the loans were subject to interest.

If God intended that tithing be carried over into the gentile age, why was it not taught or recognized by the New Testament churches?

If God did not intend that tithing be carried over into the gentile age, why was it not abrogated or denied as, for example, were circumcision (Galatians 6:15) and the observance of Jewish feasts and fasts (Colossians 2:16)? Is it reasonable to suppose that less would be expected of those who live under grace than of those who lived under the law?

The basic principle of tithing, proportionate giving, is commanded by Paul in 1 Corinthians 16:2. And Jesus says of tithing that it ought not to be left undone (Matthew 23:23).

Can a man have God's Spirit and the carnal mind at the same time?

If by "having" God's Spirit you mean being born of the Spirit, being a new creature in Christ Jesus in the regenerating power of the Spirit, then the answer is, "Yes." "If any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his" (Romans 8:9): "For the flesh [the same word translated by the adjective 'carnal' in Romans 8:7] lusteth against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh: and these are contrary the one to the other; so that ye cannot do the things that ye would" (Galatians 5:17).

If by "having" God's Spirit you mean being baptized and filled with the Spirit, then the answer is, "No." "And God, which knoweth the hearts, bare them witness giving them the Holy Ghost, even as he did unto us; and put no limit to your faith as we throw ourselves into the Spirit which saves through the answer of a good conscience toward God by the power of the risen Christ.

When and how much of the Bible was translated, there seems to be good indication of the King James Version. This was fifty-one years before the publication of the King James Version.
Curtis Morgan, a young Navajo Indian from Gallup, New Mexico, who was converted from Catholicism shortly after hearing the words of "At the Cross" in song, recently toured the Publishing House and is pictured in front of the large press which prints the Herald of Holiness. Young Morgan, a sincere and enthusiastic Nazarene, recently graduated from the School of Baking at Haskell Institute, Lawrence, Kansas. He is standing between Miss Mary Alice Canen, who works in the Publishing House accounting department, and Elden Rawlings, who is in the sales department.

The Church of the Nazarene was organized in Fort Dodge, Iowa, in 1921. Under the leadership of Rev. A. D. Foster and faithful laymen the new building here pictured was erected and the first unit completed. The interior of the sanctuary was completed after the arrival of the present pastor, Rev. Lyle C. Borger. Dr. Hardy C. Powers, general superintendent, dedicated the new building.

To help celebrate the 180th anniversary of the U.S. Army chaplain corps, two chaplains with the 101st Airborne Division at Fort Campbell, Kentucky, recently collaborated in a spectacular free fall jump. Captain Clifford E. Keys, Jr. (left), Nazarene chaplain, and Lt. Col. Thomas E. Waldie jumped from an altitude of 5,300 feet, and fell free for 3,300 feet holding between them a nylon cord with a chaplain's flag bearing the Christian cross. Chaplain Keys is a master parachutist with a record of 221 military jumps and 19 free fall jumps. He is now stationed at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas (N.I.S.).

The Church of the Nazarene in Lindsay, Oklahoma, was begun in May of 1959 as a home mission project of the Southwest Oklahoma District. This fine new chapel was erected with pastor and people donating labor, at a cost of only $5,400. The building was dedicated by District Superintendent W. T. Johnson. Rev. Paul Stroud has been pastor of the church since its beginning. Lindsay is an agricultural and oil field community in south central Oklahoma with a population of about five thousand.
